MOONLIGHT OVER RUNNING WATER

Gamelan Sekar Jaya
The Bay Area's renowned ensemble presents a preview of their unique program for the 1992 Festival of the Arts in Denpasar, Bali. The troupe was invited to tour and participate in the Festival by the Governor of Bali.

The program includes three new commissioned instrumental pieces and one dance drama, as well as two traditional Balinese works, that Gamelan Sekar Jaya will present in Bali. This repertoire was created to demonstrate the performers' hommage to traditional Balinese culture as well as to reflect the nature of Sekar Jaya as an American group.

The commissioned instrumental pieces are Michael Tenzer's Tubah Banyuari (Tributaries), Evan Ziporyn's Aneh Tapi Nyata (Strange but True), and Wayne Vitale's Byomantara (Big Sound From Space). The dance drama is based on the Balinese Prembon form, choreographed by Rachel Cooper and I Gusti Agung Ayu Warsiki, with music by Cooper and I Nyoman Windha.

The traditional Balinese works are Legong Kuntul and Taruna Jaya. I Gusti Lanang, an outstanding Balinese dancer, has come from Bali to perform in the Prembon.

Gamelan Sekar Jaya, formed in 1979, has grown from an informal artists' collective to a community-based arts organization with an international reputation. The company's thirty American musicians and dancers, dedicated to the study of Balinese performing arts, have presented hundreds of concerts throughout the West Coast.

The group's tour of Indonesia in 1985 was the first time a group from outside Indonesia had been invited to perform traditional gamelan music. The wildly enthusiastic reception by the Balinese, including performances on national television, was captured in the award-winning documentary Kembali, seen in the United States on PBS.

Performances at the Cowell Theater are Friday and Saturday, June 12 and 13 at 8pm. Tickets are $8 to $10. For information, call (510) 237-6849.

Gamelan Sari Raras
Gamelan Sari Raras (Essence of Melody) is a group of Bay Area musicians who have studied gamelan in the United States and in Java. They have performed dozens of concerts throughout California, covering the range of Javanese performing arts from topeng (masked dance) to wayang kulit (shadow play) to klenengan (pure instrumental performance).

Formed in 1988 by master musician and dhalang (puppet master) Widiyanto S. Putro, the troupe often features guest artists from as far away as Java.

At the invitation of the Indonesian government, Sari Raras will tour Indonesia this summer, performing in Jakarta, Surakarta and Bali. The group presents a concert in Fort Mason's Conference Center prior to the tour.

Gamelan is the traditional music of Indonesia, encompassing a great diversity of styles. The Indonesian republic is made up of hundreds of islands, with musical forms ranging from the bright, intense, glamorous sounds of Bali to the quieter, more reflective harmonies of central Java, sometimes described as "moonlight over running water."

Sari Raras plays the classical court music of central Java, an ecstatic tapestry of tuned gongs, percussion and voices. The flowering of this tradition began perhaps 300 years ago, although Javanese gamelan in all its forms is over a thousand years old. The tradition continues to flourish and evolve, in Java and abroad.

The instruments used by Sari Raras are a revered set, possibly the finest Javanese gamelan in America. They are called Khyai Udan Mas (Venerable Golden Rain), and are currently owned by UC Berkeley.

The concert at Fort Mason takes place on Friday, June 19 at 8pm. Admission is $10, students, seniors and Friends of Fort Mason $8. For information, call 621-5281.

CROSSING THE BROKEN BRIDGE

A Traveling Jewish Theatre, in association with Life On The Water, presents work-in-progress showings of Crossing The Broken Bridge.

The play, about African American-Jewish relations, is performed by its authors, Naomi Newman and John O'Neal, directed by Steven Kent. As part of the play's development process, a discussion between the artists and audience follows each performance.

Naomi Newman is a founding member of A Traveling Jewish Theatre. Her background includes Yiddish culture, classical music, improvisational theater, television and humanistic psychology. In the late '60s, she helped found and directed two of the most important improvisational ensembles in Los Angeles, the Committee Workshop and the Synergy Trust.

Newman co-authored and directed ATJT's first three ensemble pieces. She returned to the stage in the company's fourth ensemble work, Berlin, Jerusalem and the Moon. For the past five years, she has performed her one-woman show Snake Talk: Urgent Messages from the Mother at theaters and universities across the country.

John O'Neal is director of Junebug Productions, a community-based arts program in New Orleans, and is artistic director of the Junebug Theater Project. Long involved in the civil rights movement, O'Neal co-founded the Free Southern Theater in 1963 to "make an art about freedom, a freedom through art." He served as director of this seminal Black arts institution from 1968 until it closed in 1980.

O'Neal is the author of five plays, and has been a major collaborator on several more, including The Mozamgola Caper with the San Francisco Mime Troupe. His writing for the theater has received frequent recognition, including the Louisiana Artist's Fellowship, and awards from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Rockefeller Foundation.

Steven Kent was resident director of the Provisional Theatre in Los Angeles from 1972 to 1982, receiving three Los Angeles Drama Critics Awards for Direction. He has directed over fifty productions, among them The James Joyce Liquid Theatre, produced at the Guggenheim Museum in New York City and in Paris and London; the environmental production Dreams Against the State by Deena Metzger in Los Angeles and Atlanta; Mother Courage and her Children at the International Brecht Festival in Toronto; and Mr. Universe by Jim Grimsely, winner of the Oppenheimer Award in New York. He is currently resident director at the Tennessee Repertory Theatre in Nashville, as well as artistic director of Seven Stages Theatre in Atlanta.

Crossing the Broken Bridge is presented at Life On The Water Theatre in Landmark Building B from May 28 through June 7, Thursday through Sunday at 8pm, and Sunday matinees at 2pm. (There is no 8pm show on Sunday, May 31.)

Tickets are $7 Thursday and Sunday, $9 Friday and Saturday. Group, student and senior discounts are available. For information or reservations, call the LOTW Box Office, 776-8999.

WEILL ON BROADWAY

Angelina Réaux at Life On The Water.

Angelina Réaux is swiftly gaining recognition as one of America's premier singing actresses and one of the finest interpreters of Kurt Weill's music.

The reviews are raves. "Shimmering performances! Réaux may have the best voice of any of the great Weill singers," says Richard Dyer, The Boston Globe. "Except for Teresa Stratas, no singer in recent memory has brought to Weill's music Réaux's combination of vocal bravura and fiery theatricality," says Stephen Holden, New York Times. "Réaux's dark, glamourous soprano is a real theater voice!" from Connoisseur. "Warm! Seductive! An actress with both wit and power," from Leighton Kerner of The Village Voice. "Réaux is luminous!" says Marilyn Stassio, New York Post.

Dyer of The Boston Globe concludes his review: "The Boston Pops should sign up Angelina Réaux immediately; Sarah Caldwell should give her a lifetime contract for anything she wants to sing, and Carmen whether she feels like it or not...the Red Sox should get her to unfurl the National Anthem; Harvard should give her a chair. And any music theater composer who isn't writing for Réaux is out of his mind."

Réaux performs at Life On The Water Theatre in a program of songs from all of Kurt Weill's Broadway works, including selections from Lost In The Stars, Street Scene, Lady In The Dark, Love Life, One Touch Of Venus, Knickerbocker Holiday and the unfinished musical Huck Finn.

The soprano's credits include an acclaimed one-woman show devoted to the music of Weill at Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival, in a five-week sold-out run in 1988. She has since presented the program in Boston, at the Almeida Festival in London, and at the 1990 Opera Omaha Fall Festival. She has recorded the show for the Koch International label, and sang the role of Rose Maurrant in a new London Records release of Weill's Street Scene.

She has performed in opera, musical theater and recital. Her 1989-90 season included roles in Christopher Alden's highly acclaimed production of Dido and Aeneas at Opera at the Academy in New York; Poulenc's La Voix Humaine and Menotti's The Telephone directed by Stephen Wadsworth at the Skylight Opera in Milwaukee. She made her New York cabaret debut in February 1990 with a three-week run at the Ballroom in New York City, singing music from Puccini to Jerome Kern.

Many of her engagements were conducted by Leonard Bernstein. She participated in the Deutsche Grammophone recordings of West Side Story and A Quiet Place, and was chosen by Bernstein to perform and record the role of Mimi in DG's Grammy-nominated La Boheme.

Piano accompanist for the Weill concert at LOTW is Robert Kapilow, Music Director of the Festival Orchestra, the Conductor-in-Residence at both the Rutgers Summerfest and Hampton SummerFest. His activities include symphonic, operatic, and musical theater conducting, as well as composing, accompanying and lecturing. He is also becoming one of the nation's most persuasive commentators on classical music, with five unusual programs for Public Television in the last two years, and a nationwide program on National Public Radio's Performance Today.

"Angelina Réaux sings Weill On Broadway" is presented at 8pm on Tuesday, June 16 and Thursday through Sunday, June 18 through 21. Tickets are $12 to $16, available through Life On The Water Box Office or through all BASS and STBS outlets. For information, call 776-8999.

A HEALTHY HOUSE

The Problem: Most dishwashing liquids are detergents, not soaps. They are derived from scarce petroleum, are non-biodegradable, and usually contain chemical additives such as artificial fragrances and colors. Detergents cause more child poisonings than any other product.

The Solution: Use liquid soap such as castile, or rub a damp dishcloth over a bar of soap. Look for naturally derived or glycerine-based soaps.

The Problem: The lye, hydrochloric and sulfuric acids found in drain cleaners can burn human tissue, causing permanent damage. If not used precisely according to instructions, they can explode. They are especially dangerous around children.

The Solution: Always use a drain basket. To maintain clean drains, there is a recipe using baking soda, salt and cream of tartar. Pour this mixture down drain and follow with hot water. The mixture must be used immediately; it does not remain effective if stored.

The Problem: Glass cleaners emit ammonia mist, which you breathe. Although ammonia is a poison, glass cleaning products do not carry a warning label.

The Solution: First, use rubbing alcohol to clean the residual wax left from commercial glass cleaners. Then clean with a mixture of half white vinegar and half water.

Environmental Protection Agency tests have revealed that the air inside our houses can be more polluted than the air outside. Even in smoggy cities, indoor air can contain five times more chemical pollutants than the air outside, with much of the pollution coming from common household cleansers.

Alternatives can be simple products like baking soda, borax, white vinegar, cream of tartar, washing soda and plain, old-fashioned soap.

The Clean Water Fund, a national environmental research and education organization, is sponsoring a program to educate homeowners about non-toxic cleaning techniques.

The "Healthy House Tour—Reducing Toxics In The Home" takes participants through several areas of the house, garage and yard. It explains how to reduce toxics use by choosing safe cleaning alternatives. The tour also promotes recycling and solid waste reduction.

At the end of the tour, participants receive a copy of the Household Alternatives Chart with its "Problem/Solution" format.

The program uses a portable Home SAFE Home exhibit, consisting of 24 large color panels, displayed in "house tour" format, each room set up with the household products most commonly used there. The panels detail common toxic or hazardous household items and environmentally safe alternatives. The display, in Fort Mason's Conference Center, stresses purchasing of multiple-use vs. one-use disposable products.

The display panels were developed by Clean Water Fund volunteers in Princeton, New Jersey, and are now available to community and environmental groups around the country.

This has proved to be an effective way to generate public interest in the problem of household hazardous waste through an open, hands-on event. The Home SAFE Home volunteer staff is readily available during the tour to answer any questions or offer valuable suggestions.

According to the Clean Water Fund, the household products found in the supermarket contain 55,000 chemicals, only about 10% of which have been tested for their effects on humans and the environment.

One further alarming note: if you choose to replace your current products for the non-toxic cleaners, you can't just dump the old stuff in the trash. Cleansers, furniture polish, metal polish, rug cleaners, aerosols, drain openers, bleach, and many other products are considered hazardous wastes, and must be taken to a special disposal center to prevent them ending up seeping from landfills into ground water.

The Clean Water Fund is planning to organize at least six "Healthy House Tour" consumer education events throughout the San Francisco Bay Area in 1992. The first one was held in January in Oakland.

The tour takes place on Saturday, June 13 from 10am to 4pm. Admission is free. For more information, call the Clean Water Fund, 362-3496.

AS IF SURVIVAL MATTERED

David Brower has been one of America's foremost environmentalists for over fifty years. As the first executive director of the Sierra Club, he gained a worldwide reputation for his efforts to save the Grand Canyon, Dinosaur National Monument, and many other priceless ecosystems.

He went on to form the League of Conservation Voters and the Friends of the Earth, where he led the environmental movement beyond the realm of land protection into concerns about such areas as population growth, nuclear technology, energy and disarmament. He also led in getting environmental groups involved in both lobbying for legislation and working to elect environmental candidates.

When he founded Earth Island Institute a decade ago, he created a project-centered model for environmental organizing that has won important victories in marine habitat protection, action to save the world's dwindling rainforests, building urban environmental multicultural leadership, and supporting grassroots environmental leadership in the Third World.

On Monday, June 29, Earth Island Institute celebrates David Brower's 80th birthday. Mr. Brower, having just returned from the landmark United Nations Conference on the Environment and Development in Rio de Janiero, presents his "Agenda for Action As If Survival Mattered." He outlines his most urgent environmental concerns, having recently stated that "the actions we take in the next ten years will determine what kind of future is in store for all future generations."

David Brower, one of America's foremost environmentalists.

The celebration starts with a fund-raising dinner for the Brower Fund at Greens Restaurant, followed at 8pm by the program in the Cowell Theater. Actor and environmentalist Dennis Weaver hosts; Dr. Noel Brown of the United Nations Environment Programme gives the keynote address. The evening also includes highlights from Galen Rowell's slide presentation, "The Preservation and Spirit of Adventure," John De Graaf's award-winning film about David Brower, music by the San Francisco Saxophone Quartet, and eco-rap artist A. K. Black. A reception with dessert and refreshments follows. The Brower Fund responds to urgent, innovative environmental projects in need of seed support.

The dinner is $150; the Cowell Theater event is $30. All members of the public are welcome. For information or reservations, call 788-3666.

FREE THE NEED

Free the Need is a community-based charitable organization, committed to distributing surplus food and clothing to needy families in San Francisco and surrounding Bay Area communities.

The group solicits donations of surplus food products from food vendors and distributors; operates a clothing distribution program, with donations of surplus clothing from private individuals, garment manufacturers and retail outlet stores; and acquires and maintains facilities for sheltering needy families, offering programs to help people better integrate themselves into the mainstream.

Free the Need began in 1989 with a group of individuals interested in improving the welfare of others in their community. On a regular, weekly basis since that time, the organization has given away more than 85,000 pounds of food, providing resources for 2,000 families.

The food is distributed to families in targeted neighborhoods. A truck drives into the area, delivering food boxes to the residents on a first-come, first-served basis. In addition, volunteers and neighbors help carry the food to shut-ins and the elderly. Because this distribution happens on the streets of poor neighborhoods, the program reaches those on the very bottom—people who have no resources, no hope and little information about what is available to them through other existing programs. For many of these families, English is a foreign language. In 1990, Free the Need started supplementing this program with holiday boxes that included turkeys at Thanksgiving and hams at Christmas.

Funding comes primarily from individual contributions, along with gifts from businesses and foundations. Because the organization operates with an all-volunteer staff, it has been able to distribute this food at a cost of 4 cents per pound.

The neighborhood and family members who founded Free the Need explain their philosophy: "The number of families living at the poverty level has increased significantly over the past decade and is continuing to rise. This means the number of children being raised in an environment where survival is the major objective in the life of the family is also increasing.

"At Free the Need, we believe in the power of America's private sector, that we live in a community of individuals, corporations and institutions which are capable of providing everything needed to families less fortunate than our own.

"We all have surplus of something in our lives—food, clothing, furniture, shelter, money, time, and love. By giving away our surplus to those in need, we receive more toward our own happiness and fulfillment."

On Saturday, June 27 at 7:30pm, Free the Need presents a fund-raising extravaganza and silent auction, with dancing, entertainment, food and spirits. Black tie is optional. Admission is $25; all donations are tax-deductible. The event takes place in the Conference Center, Landmark Building A. For information about the fund-raiser, volunteering or donating your surplus, call 587-6685.

BIKE ADVENTURE EXPO

This is the seventh year for the American Youth Hostels Great San Francisco Bike Adventure. Over 13,000 riders from all over California are expected to come out early for a day of recreational riding through the streets of San Francisco. It has been described as the "Bay to Breakers of cycling."

In 1991, the Bike Adventure was the largest cycling event in the country. Just as Bay to Breakers has become a Bay Area spring tradition, the Bike Adventure has become the summer counterpart, famous as a non-competitive, family-oriented ride that everyone can enjoy.

This year, The Bike Adventure Expo has been added to the festivities, offering the opportunity to learn more about the world of cycling. The Expo features the latest in bicycling equipment and technology, Saturn Cycling team member and Olympic cyclist Matt Hamon, free carbo-feed and live broadcast presented by KRQR featuring door prizes and celebrity guests, demonstrations of cycling and outdoor sport techniques and equipment, seminars on biking adventures and world-wide discovery trips, health and fitness lectures and a round-table discussion on bicycling in the '90s.

Cycling is the second most popular sport in the United States. The California Transportation Commission recently approved $9.2 million for projects ranging from bike lanes to storage, lighting and parking facilities. On a local level, the SF Bicycle Advisory Committee is developing a city-wide bicycle program. The SF Bicycle Coalition and the Bay Area Bicycle Activists are working steadily on their campaign to make Golden Gate Park auto-free.

Among the discussions presented at the Expo are concerns about making bicycle commuting safer and more convenient, and the future of commuting by bicycle in California. Rick Blunden, chief of the California Department of Transportation's Office of Bicycle Facilities is one of the participants in a round-table discussion and public question and answer session.

The Bike Adventure Expo takes place in the Herbst Pavilion and Cowell Theater on Saturday, June 13 from 10am to 5pm. Admission is $3 general, $1 to riders registered for the Bike Adventure Ride on Sunday, June 14, which starts at 7:30am at Moscone Playground and ends at Fort Mason. For information, call 668-2243.

THE ITALIAN SPIRIT

The Museo ItaloAmericano is dedicated to researching, preserving and exhibiting the works of Italian and Italian American artists and to fostering an appreciation for Italian art, culture and history through lively programs and special events.

La motocicletta come scultura
M. V. Agusta, Ducati Gilera, Bimota, Moto Guzzi—all names that evoke excitement and awe for the enthusiast of Italian motorcycles—have established the world's standard for design and performance. "The Motorcycle as Sculpture: An Exhibition of Classic and Contemporary Italian Motorcycles" includes fifteen motociclette italiane, most dating from the classic period (1949-74) and a few modern models, including an extremely high-performance Bimota. Discover the breathtaking beauty and technical excellence of these priceless oggetti d'arte.

Maria Gloria and the Italian Motorcycle Museum provided the exhibition's "sparkplug." The show was made possible by the generous loans of priceless motorcycles by Angelo Panari, a factory-trained racing mechanic; Randy Bradesku, proprietor of BMW-Ducate-Bimota of Marin; and Sam Bernstein, President of the Bimota Owners Club.

The exhibition opens June 3 and continues through July 19. The opening reception, sponsored by Laghi restaurant, is Friday, May 29, 5:30 to 7pm. Gino Laghi, the restaurant owner, comes from the Emilia Romagna region, where most of these motorcycles are created. The reception is free to Museo members, $4 for non-members. RSVP.

Annual Children's Art Show: Discoverers of New Worlds
The late fifteenth and sixteenth centuries were times of great discovery in the arts, sciences, and through exploration of the physical world. Italians were in the forefront of these explorations, opening up new frontiers of knowledge. This year's Children's Art Show is the result of an intensive outreach program offered by the Museo to Bay Area schools. Children learned about leaders of the Italian Renaissance, including artist-scientist Leonardo da Vinci. Over 2,450 students from fifty schools participated. The program, consisting of four units, has been offered free to all teachers. For more information, contact the coordinator of the Children's Program, Paola Bagnatori, at the Museo. The exhibition opened May 27 and continues through June 7.

Buon Duecentesimo compleanno, Gioacchino Rossini!
This year opera-lovers celebrate the 200th anniversary of the birth of Gioacchino Rossini. Concurrently with the San Francisco Opera's Rossini Festival, the Museo commemorates this composer from Pesaro, Italy. The June program is "Behind the Scenes of the San Francisco Opera's Rossini Festival," with guests from the SF Opera Company discussing the production of the four Rossini operas being offered this year.
